

March 5, 2025

Testimony of Pacific Legal Foundation before the Rhode Island House Committee on Finance in support of House Bill 5076, article 10—Reforming Rhode Island's certificate of need laws

Chair Abney and members of the Committee:

My name is Jaimie Cavanaugh, and I am Legal Policy Counsel at Pacific Legal Foundation (PLF). PLF is a national public interest law firm dedicated to defending Americans' civil liberties. Since its founding more than 50 years ago, PLF has been helping Americans fight for their constitutional rights in courthouses and legislatures across the country.

Part of PLF's work has been to support healthcare entrepreneurs who want to offer needed services, but are restricted by certificate of need laws. I have represented immigrants in Kentucky who wanted to open a niche home health service for Nepali-speaking refugees, but were shut out of the market by CON laws. And I have worked with legislators in more than a dozen states to repeal CON laws.

House Bill 5076, Article 10

Thank you for considering this important bill today. Article 10 of House Bill 5076 modernizes Rhode Island's certificate of need (CON) laws. The article proposes sensible reforms in line with reforms made in other states.

This testimony proceeds in four parts. First, I'd like to briefly summarize the research on the harms caused by CON laws. Second, I want to explain why supporting CON reforms will positively impact healthcare costs. Third, I will explain that the research dispels the myth that hospitals or healthcare facilities close when states reform CON laws. Finally, I will mention some of the CON policy reforms enacted over the past few years.

Rhode Island House Committee of Finance March 5, 2025 2 of 8

I. Research Overwhelmingly Shows that CON Laws are Harmful

Approximately 40% of the nation's population live in a state with no CON laws or very limited CON laws, which makes it easy to compare outcomes. Unsurprisingly, the research overwhelmingly shows that CON laws fail to realize their intended benefits of decreasing healthcare costs, increasing access to care, or increasing healthcare quality. Just the opposite, patients in states with CON laws pay more for healthcare, drive farther and have longer wait times, and receive lower quality care than those who live in states that have already repealed their CON laws.

In one publication, my co-author, Ph.D economist Matthew Mitchell, and I reviewed more than 400 academic tests of CON laws. We found that 89% of those tests associated CON laws with negative or neutral results. I would direct you to the citations in my written testimony, but we categorized results by effects on cost/price, access, quality of care, and care for vulnerable populations. CON laws fail to improve any of those categories.

In terms of the effects on underserved populations, the findings include:

- Uninsured patients are more likely to pay out of pocket in states with CON laws,<sup>2</sup>
- A large black-white disparity in the availability of coronary angiographies disappeared when New Jersey exempted the procedure from CON,<sup>3</sup> and

&lt;sup>1</sup> Cavanaugh, J & Mitchell, M. "Stiving for Better Care," Institute for Justice (Aug. 2023), https://ij.org/report/striving-for-better-care/; see also Mitchell, Matthew D. "Certificate-of-Need laws in healthcare: A comprehensive review of the literature." Southern Economic Journal (2024), https://doi.org/10.1002/soej.12698

&lt;sup>2</sup> Custer, W. S., et al. (2006). Report of Data Analyses to the Georgia Commission on the Efficacy of the CON Program, https://scholarworks.gsu.edu/cgi/viewcontent.cgi? article=1017&context=ghpc_reports

&lt;sup>3</sup> Cantor, J. C., et al. (2009). Reducing racial disparities in coronary angiography. Health Affairs, 28(5), 1521–1531. https://doi.org/10.1377/hlthaff.28.5.1521; DeLia, D., et al. (2009). Effects of regulation and competition on health care disparities: the case of cardiac angiography in New Jersey. Journal of health politics, policy and law, 34(1), 63–91, https://doi.org/10.1215/03616878-2008-992.

Rhode Island House Committee of Finance March 5, 2025 3 of 8

• There is no evidence that CON laws increase charity care.4

Reforming CON laws often gets painted as a partisan issue, but I can assure you it is not. Agencies in every presidential administration beginning with Reagan have agreed on this issue and publicly called on states to repeal CON laws. For example, during the Obama Administration, the U.S. Department of Justice (DOJ) and the U.S. Federal Trade Commission submitted comments supporting CON repeal or reform in Virginia.<sup>5</sup> And in 2023, DOJ submitted comments supporting a bill to fully repeal Alaska's CON laws.<sup>6</sup>

Other recent publications by the Kaiser Family Fund and Aspen Institute have also recommended that states repeal or reform CON laws.<sup>7</sup>

II. Reforming CON laws tends to lead to cost savings

The evidence is also clear that CON laws result in higher healthcare costs and higher healthcare spending.<sup>8</sup> Whether studying cost per service, cost per patient, or government expenditures, the results were the same. Healthcare costs in states with CON laws were higher per service and per patient, and overall government expenditures were higher. Notably:

• CON laws are associated with 10% higher variable costs in general acute hospitals,9

&lt;sup>4</sup> Stratmann, T., & Russ, J. (2014). Do Certificate-of-Need Laws Increase Indigent Care? Mercatus Center at George Mason University. https://papers.ssrn.com/sol3/papers.cfm? abstract_id=3211637

&lt;sup>5</sup> See https://www.justice.gov/atr/case-document/file/788171/dl?inline

&lt;sup>6</sup> See https://www.justice.gov/atr/file/1302691/dl?inline

&lt;sup>7</sup> State Efforts to Control Healthcare Costs: Lessons Learned and Insights for the Future, 25–27 https://www.aspeninstitute.org/wp-content/uploads/2024/05/HMS-State-Efforts-to-Control-Healthcare-Costs-R3-1-1.pdf; https://www.kff.org/health-costs/issue-brief/ten-things-to-know-about-consolidation-in-health-care-provider-markets/

&lt;sup>8</sup> See n.1, supra, https://ij.org/report/striving-for-better-care/overwhelming-evidence-shows-that-con-laws-lead-to-higher-health-care-spending/

&lt;sup>9</sup> Anderson, K. B. (1991). Regulation, market structure, and hospital costs: comment. Southern Economic Journal, 58(2),528–534. https://doi.org/10.2307/1060194.

Rhode Island House Committee of Finance March 5, 2025 4 of 8

- CON laws are associated with higher Medicaid costs for home health services, 10
- Medicare reimbursements for total knee arthroplasty are 5 to 10% lower in states without CON laws, 11
- CON laws are associated with higher per-capita Medicaid community-based care expenditures.<sup>12</sup>

Healthcare spending and healthcare costs matter for many reasons. First, the state wants to ensure its healthcare spending is not wasteful and goes toward actual patient care. Lower costs could save the taxpayers money, or make it possible to insure more people.

Second, healthcare costs are unaffordable for the privately insured. Many people with commercial insurance cannot afford the cost of their deductibles, copayments, or co-insurance. An estimate 5.2% of adults in Rhode Island report having medical debt. In fact, high amounts of medical debt led the Office of the General Treasurer to create a medical debt relief program in 2024. While forgiving medical debt is a laudable goal and can be lifechanging for many people, it doesn't get at the root of the problem—high healthcare costs.

But allowing more providers to open is a proven way to decrease healthcare spending. Yale economist, Zack Cooper has been studying healthcare pricing for several years. He finds that "[p]rices at monopoly hospitals are 12% higher than https://scholarworks.gsu.edu/cgi/viewcontent.cgi?article1017&context=ghpc_reports.

&lt;sup>10</sup> Custer, W. S., et al. (2006). Report of Data Analyses to the Georgia Commission on the Efficacy of the CON Program.

&lt;sup>11</sup> see Mitchell, M. D.(2016). Do Certificate-of-Need Laws Limit Spending?, Mercatus Center at Georgia Washington University.

https://www.mercatus.org/system/files/mercatus-mitchell-con-healthcare-spending-v3.pdf; Bailey, J. (2018). The effect of certificate of need laws on all-cause mortality. Health Services Research, 53(1), 49–62; Bailey, J., Hamami, T., & McCorry, D. (2016). Certificate of need laws and health care prices. Journal of Health Care Finance, 43(4).

&lt;sup>12</sup> Miller, N. A., Harrington, C., & Goldstein, E. (2002). Access to community-based long-term care: Medicaid's role. Journal of Aging and Health, 14(1), 138–159. https://doi.org/10.1177/089826430201400108

&lt;sup>13</sup> See Treasurer Diosssa Announce Medical Debt Relief Program for Rhode Islanders (Oct. 29, 2024), https://treasury.ri.gov/press-releases/treasurer-diossa-announces-medical-debt-relief-program-rhode-islanders

Rhode Island House Committee of Finance March 5, 2025 5 of 8

those in markets with four or more rivals." Thus, allowing more providers to open will positively impact healthcare prices.

III. Research also shows that repealing CON laws does not result in reductions in services or facilities

One common argument for keeping CON laws is they are necessary to keep existing providers from closing. The argument goes that if new facilities open, privately insured patients will leave struggling hospitals and the hospitals will be left with only the uninsured or under-insured patients. Some call this cream skimming or cherry picking. Economists call it cost shifting.

If cost shifting existed, when Medicare and Medicaid reimbursement rates decrease, hospitals would be forced to negotiate higher rates from private insurance providers. Instead, economists find that when states lower Medicaid reimbursement rates, rates for privately insured patients also decline.<sup>15</sup>

In a 2020 review, the Congressional Budget Office found no evidence of costshifting, stating

The share of providers' patients who are covered by Medicare and Medicaid is not related to higher prices paid by commercial insurers. That finding suggests that providers do not raise the prices they negotiate with commercial insurers to offset lower prices paid by government programs[.]<sup>16</sup>

&lt;sup>14</sup> See Cooper, Z., Craig, S. V., Gaynor, M., & Van Reenen, J. (2019). The price ain't right? Hospital prices and health spending on the privately insured. The quarterly journal of economics, 134(1), 51-107, https://healthcarepricingproject.org/sites/default/files/Updated_the_price_aint_right_qje.pdf

<sup>10</sup> Thom Walsh, Don't Blame Medicare for Rising Medical Bills,

&lt;sup>15</sup> Clemens, J., & Gottlieb, J. D. (2017). In the shadow of a giant: Medicare's influence on private physician payments. Journal of Political Economy, 125(1), 1-39 https://www.journals.uchicago.edu/doi/full/10.1086/689772

<sup>16</sup> See https://www.cbo.gov/system/files/2022-01/57422-medical-prices.pdf

Rhode Island House Committee of Finance March 5, 2025 6 of 8

Just the opposite, having a low number of Medicare patients is associated with higher hospitals prices.<sup>17</sup> But if cost shifting existed, hospitals with a low number of Medicare patients would not need to charge higher prices.

A member of the Board that oversees CON in Vermont has explained that the cost shifting myth exists despite the fact that research finds no evidence of it:

Because it serves the interests of some very powerful forces in health care. First, it provides monopolistic hospitals and other profit-maximizing providers with a way to shift blame onto the government for their price gouging . . . And remarkably, many state governments not only accept this lie but help enable it.<sup>18</sup>

If cost shifting existed, we would also have plenty of real-world examples of facility closures following CON repeal. Instead, when states repeal CON laws, more facilities open, and more facilities stay open. One recent 2024 paper found a 92%–112% increase in surgery centers per capita in rural areas following CON repeal and found "no evidence that CON repeal is associated with hospital closures in rural areas. Rather, some regression models show that repeal is associated with fewer medical service reductions."<sup>19</sup>

Legislators should follow the research and feel confident that repealing CON laws will not harm existing hospitals or force them to close. For example, following repeal of CON in Pennsylvania in 1996, the Pennsylvania Hospital Association opposed legislation to reinstate CON laws. In 2015, the Pennsylvania Hospital Association publicly opposed a bill to renew CON laws testifying that: "Reinstating an administratively cumbersome and costly process will result in unintended consequences, including stifling innovation in healthcare delivery

&lt;sup>17</sup> See https://healthcarepricingproject.org/sites/default/files/pricing_variation_exec_summary.pdf

&lt;sup>18</sup> Thom Walsh, "Don't Blame Medicare for Rising Medical Bills, Blame Monopolies," Washington Monthly (July/Aug. 2023).

https://washingtonmonthly.com/2023/06/19/dont-blame-medicare-for-rising-medical-bills-blame-monopolies/

&lt;sup>19</sup> Stratmann, T. et. al, The causal effect of repealing Certificate-of-Need laws for ambulatory surgical centers: Does access to medical services increase?, supra n. 19.

Rhode Island House Committee of Finance March 5, 2025 7 of 8

in hospital settings and potentially preventing the appropriate availability of services within communities."<sup>20</sup>

IV. State around the country are reforming CON laws

The trend around the country has been reforming and repealing CON laws. Here are some notable bills enacted over the past few years:

- 1. In 2021, Montana repealed CON for everything except nursing homes.
- 2. 2023, South Carolina repealed CON for everything except nursing homes.
- 3. In 2023, North Carolina made significant reforms and repealed CON for things like psychiatric care facilities, rehab facilities, MRI equipment in counties above a certain size, and increased the dollar thresholds that trigger a CON requirement.
- 4. In 2023, West Virginia repealed CON for birth centers and now allows hospitals to expand services without a CON.
- 5. In 2023, Connecticut repealed CON for birth centers.
- 6. In 2024, Georgia repealed CON for many facilities and services including birth centers, inpatient psychiatric programs, inpatient substance use treatment facilities, rural hospital services, and replacement of equipment.
- 7. In 2024, Oklahoma repealed CON for everything except nursing homes.
- 8. In 2024, Tennessee enacted another significant reform, excluding the following from CON: hospitals in counties without an acute care hospital, burn units, neo-natal intensive care, linear accelerator service, MRI/PET (in certain counties), adult care homes, traumatic brain injury residential homes, and open-heart surgery.
- 9. In 2024, Michigan repealed CON for birth centers.
- 10. In 2024, Washington extended an exemption for CON on psych beds/facilities through 2029.
- 11. In 2025, Wyoming repealed CON for nursing homes (its only healthcare CON)

Bills to reform CON laws are currently pending in: Arizona, Connecticut, D.C., Florida, Hawaii, Kentucky, Maine, Mississippi, Nebraska, Oregon, Tennessee, Washington, West Virginia, and more are likely to come this session.

&lt;sup>20</sup> Michael W. Thompson, "Certificate of Need by Michael Thompson: Reform for better care," Richmond.com (July 11, 2015).

Rhode Island House Committee of Finance March 5, 2025 8 of 8

In short, I urge support for article 10 in the Governor's budget bill. Supporting CON reform will benefit patients throughout Rhode Island and ensure that small business owners and niche service providers are not shut out of the healthcare market.

Thank you for the opportunity to testify. I am happy to answer any questions; my contact information is listed below.

Respectfully,

Jaimie Cavanaugh

Legal Policy Counsel jcavanaugh@pacificlegal.org

248-895-1555