Do you know what a desperate man will do to contact his loved ones when he is poor and imprisoned in Rhode Island?

The Guards at the ACI do.

So why don't we ask an ACI employee how much overall stress would be reduced when all inmates have an equal opportunity to communicate with the outside world.

When prison rights are reduced to a commodity there will always be those who will exploit this system. And those who will look away.

Those with money can buy phone access pin numbers from those with nobody to call and no money.

This clogged phone system is a neverending source of tension between the many who need use of the few phones available.

Access to the phones are limited by neverending restrictions from guards who continuously fail to operate the prison with anything resembling a routine.

PRISONS RUN ON ROUTINE.

Please hold those who don't prioritize professional behavior and routine to at least basic human decency - phone/email/video visits are for the poor just as much as those with good jobs and

Money from The outside.

Free phone Access Means More of a Routine Life inside prison walls.

A Routine prison Sentence is what Corrects behavior.

Prisoners should be able to Concentrate on The Flaws and mistakes They made with help and guidance from Those who still Care outside of The walls locking them in.

Breaking more rules and laws to gain access to what other prisoners with jobs and money take for granted is an insult to every poor disconnected human being The State of Rhode Island locks away.

Thank you for your time and consideration
