

JAMES ALAN FOX
Brief Bio

James Alan Fox is The Lipman Family Professor of Criminology, Law and Public Policy at Northeastern University. He has published 18 books, including Extreme killing: Understanding serial and mass murder, and Violence and security on campus: From preschool through college. In addition, as a member of its Board of Contributors, his opinion column appears frequently in USA TODAY. Also related to today's topic, Professor Fox was an expert witness in litigation related to several mass shootings including the Sutherland Springs church shooting and the Parkland school shooting. He led the investigation of Seattle's Capitol Hill massacre for the Seattle Police Department, and he served on President Clinton's advisory committee on school shootings. Finally, he manages the Associated Press/USA TODAY/Northeastern University Mass Killing Database.

Contact email: j.fox@northeastern.edu
For additional background, go to jamesalanfox.com